Renaming: Haight

Renaming Committee, with students, parents, staff, alumni and community members.

The committee must research names and conduct a survey for a new name, or recommend maintaining the current name. If a majority of a school's community favors a name change, the committee would submit the proposed name to McPhetridge.

He would then place the request to the school board's agenda. If the board approves, AUSD would announce the proposed name change at least 90 days before it would become official.

Berkeley's school board recently voted to rename LeConte Elementary School, after Joseph LeConte's racist views surfaced following student protests at UC Berkeley. In 2016, the National Park

Maybe it can become "Love Elementary."

— Rasheed Shabazz

Service renamed LeConte Lodge in Yosemite Valley to "Yosemite Conservation Heritage Center." The Sierra Club, which built the lodge in 1903, requested the change because of LeConte's racist views.

Shabazz didn't have a specific recommendation for a new school name, and believes the school community should create one that reflects its values. He did offer one suggestion, however.

"Since Haight was about 'hate', maybe it can become 'Love Elementary,'" he said.

Center for the Arts and Alameda Eyes Optometry.

He once painted City Hall for former mayor Beverly Johnson and the Alameda Police Department building for retired police chief Burney Matthews. Artist Magazine and Alameda Magazine have both featured his works.

Once a year, he hosts an open studio. A visit to his Facebook page "George David Powell" will give you an idea of the scope of his work, and, perhaps, an idea as a gift for someone on your holiday list.

You can also view his work at <https://pixels.com/profiles/4-george-powell.html> and at <https://fineartamerica.com/profiles/4-george-powell.html>.

This scene is available on a throw pillow on George Powell's Facebook page and would make a great last-minute Christmas gift.

"I always trying to put something of myself in my work." Powell said. "I'm always looking for light and freedom. If my art moves you, then I have done my job as an artist."
