SCIENCE IS COOL

by Colin Close

Did you know...an unmanned Japanese space probe, Hayabusa2, recently arrived at an asteroid after a 3 1/2-year trip? The probe will spend about two months looking for suitable landing places on the asteroid. It will attempt three touch-and-go landings to collect samples that would be sent back in a re-entry capsule. If successful, the asteroid material could provide clues to the origin of the solar system and life on Earth.
